In her early career, she worked for the Little Rock School District in food services and later retired in 2005 from the Veterans Administration. During retirement, she continued to spread her love of cooking during family reunions, holidays, and Sunday family dinners. Whenever she would come into the family home with a covered pan, family and friends were filled with delight because they knew she had baked her famous peach cobbler. Not only was she a great cook, but she was also a loving wife, daughter, mother, sister, aunt, cousin and friend, and she will be dearly missed.
